Hi there Richard and Donna,
I'm a reporter with the New York Times, based in our Denver bureau.

I'm in Durango today reporting on the mine spill and wanted to touch base. I have the EPA's web site with mine-related info and I'll be chatting with residents today. Can you add me to future communications related to the Gold King Mine spill?

I will be at the 6 p.m. meeting tonight. Would very much like to sit down briefly with your top official on this — will regional chief Shaun McGrath be there this evening? Are you able to set up a brief sit-down with him this afternoon?

I understand that that EPA has been working with the community to clean up a mess left by decades of metal mining, and in the process of trying to help, caused this accident. We want to hear from Mr. McGrath -- Why was the EPA at Gold King in the first place? What happened? What's next?

I'm here: 301 928 5072.

Best,

Julie
